CONFERENCE FAQs

Certificate of Attendance

To request an e-Certificate of Attendance, simply email events@ces-europe.org. We will begin processing certificates when the conference has ended.

TECHNOLOGY

PowerPoints and Projectors

Every session room is equipped with a computer, projector, and projection screen. Session organizers are strongly encouraged to collect all presentations on a USB flash drive before the conference and then to arrive early to pre-load these files. This will help prevent technological delays during the session.

Attendees wishing to test their presentations on projecting equipment prior to the start of their sessions are encouraged to arrive early at their session room. You must bring your presentation on a flash drive.

WiFi Access

The conference venue and all rooms are covered by Eduroam WiFi. Please use your own institutional login details to access Eduroam. For those delegates without an Eduroam account, individual WiFi access has been arranged.

The WiFi Name is CONFERENCE, password: 56602349

It is best to use the computers in the classrooms instead of connecting your own laptops to the broadband internet in the rooms.

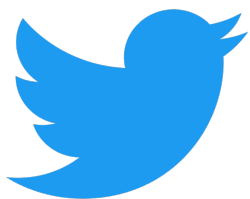

SOCIAL MEDIA

Follow along on social media throughout the conference using the official conference hashtag:

CHAIR'S WELCOME

Dear CES Community,

Welcome to CES's International Conference of Europeanists! We are particularly pleased to be meeting in Iceland, a country that straddles both the North American and European continents. It is fitting that we gather in Iceland to present our research, discuss new research ideas, and forge new connections. These activities are central to CES's mission: producing, supporting, and recognizing outstanding, multi-disciplinary research on Europe.

Iceland's geographic location is an apt metaphor for CES's strengthening ties to institutions and scholars in Europe. When CES was established in 1970, our organizational center of gravity was North America: our biennial conferences were held in North America, and the majority of individual and institutional members were located in North America. Since 2011, CES conferences have rotated between North American and European locations, reflecting CES's growing Europe-based membership. Like Iceland, CES now straddles both the North American and European continents.

This year's conference theme, "Europe's Past, Present, and Future: Utopias and Dystopias," captures many of the challenges facing Europe. Chief among these is the challenge of reconciling national independence with increasing globalization, which Guðni Th. Jóhannesson, the President of Iceland, will address in his Tuesday keynote lecture. Equally urgent is the challenge presented by the Russian invasion of Ukraine in February 2022. The keynote roundtable on Wednesday will address the implications of the conflict for the future of the European and global security orders, European Union enlargement, and the challenge of promoting democracy in wartime. More than 1,400 scholars from a range of disciplines will also present their research on other themes vital to the study of European politics, society, history, and culture.

Please join me in thanking this year's Program Committee, the Local Organizing Committee, CES's seventeen Research Networks (RNs), and the CES Executive Committee for their outstanding efforts in organizing this year's conference. The contribution of CES staff has also been extraordinary.

Next year CES returns to the European continent, to Lyon, where Sciences Po Lyon, Elico; Université Lumières Lyon 2, Elico; Université Lumières Lyon 2, Triangle; and CNRS, Triangle will collaborate to offer an exciting and stimulating environment for our 2024 conference.

On behalf of CES, I wish all of you a productive and worthwhile conference, and I hope you will have time to enjoy Iceland's spectacular and distinctive natural beauty.

Sincerely,

Karen Anderson

Chair, Council for European Studies (CES); University College Dublin

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Thirtieth International Conference of Europeanists
Sciences Po Lyon, Elico | Université Lumières Lyon 2, Elico |
Université Lumières Lyon 2, Triangle | CNRS, Triangle Lyon, France
July 3-5, 2024

Radical Europe: Violence, Emancipation and Reaction

Europe is a zone of heightened conflict. The year 2022 showed the most violent version of it, with the return of war following the Russian invasion of Ukraine justified as an extreme means of protecting Russia's geopolitical interests. Moving to a different scale of conflict, innovations in the protest repertoire of climate activism (actions targeting artworks in museums to protest against gas and oil extraction projects) have sparked a debate about "radical" forms of action. In countries such as France and Israel, the use of constitutional tools to enact unpopular laws has unleashed massive protests and undermined the legitimacy of governments' determination to implement reforms at "any cost".

In light of this, the Council for European Studies would like the participants of its 30th International Conference of Europeanists to reflect on what « radicalité » means in Europe today. Who defines radicality and in relation to what kind of social, political, cultural and economic project? To what extent can radicality inform political action, and have a casting impact on democracy in Europe? How is radicality constructed, treated, denounced or claimed in contemporary public spaces? How do the media, political actors, activists and non-governmental organizations deal with issues of radicality?

The Council for European Studies welcomes proposals for panels, roundtables, book discussions and individual papers on the study of Europe broadly defined. We encourage proposals in the widest range of disciplines and timeframes. We welcome panels that combine disciplines, genders, races, nationalities and ages.

Proposals may be submitted from September 5-October 17, 2023.

IN EUROPE, WHERE YOU STAND DEPENDS ON WHERE YOU SIT. PRESIDENTS AND ACADEMICS, NATIONALISM AND OBJECTIVITY

KEYNOTE
GUÐNI TH. JÓHANNESSON
PRESIDENT OF ICELAND

Tuesday, June 27 | 6:00 pm to 7:30 pm | Háskólabíó \(The University Cinema \(HB\)\)

The President of Iceland will provide a personal account of the opportunities and challenges of being a historian who becomes head of state. As academics and researchers, we strive for objectivity and detachment from the perceived interests of government and state. However, national representatives cannot enjoy that luxury or freedom. Is it possible to combine the two? And what about independence and interdependence in a globalized world? Can we be proud patriots and global citizens at the same time? And in the speaker's particular case: Can one uphold the ideals of academic freedom and objectivity on the one hand, and the need for national unity, a spirit of optimism and defence of the interests of the state on the other hand?

President Jóhannesson earned a B.A. in History and Political Sciences from Warwick University, an M.A. in History from the University of Iceland, an M.St. from Oxford, and a Ph.D. in History from Queen Mary University of London.

President Jóhannesson is married to Eliza Jean Reid, a Canadian by birth. Guðni and Eliza have been living in Iceland since 2003 and have four children. Jóhannesson also has a child from a previous marriage.

Before taking office as President in 2016, Jóhannesson was Professor of History at the University of Iceland. He had previously taught at the University of Iceland, Reykjavik University, Bifröst University and at the University of London. His research focuses on the formation of Iceland's foreign relations, constitutional matters, and contemporary history. His scholarly publications address topics such as the Anglo-Icelandic Cod Wars, Iceland's support for Baltic independence, and the 2008 economic crisis in Iceland. He has also written several books on modern Icelandic history, including a book on the Icelandic presidency which was published shortly after he took office in 2016. He has been widely recognized for his works, and in 2017 he was awarded an honorary degree by Queen Mary University.

President Jóhannesson is an active sport enthusiast and an advocate for public health. He is patron to the National Olympic and Sports Association of Iceland and the Icelandic Youth Association, among others.

Sigrún Ólafsdóttir (Chair) is Professor of Sociology at the University of Iceland. Her research is at the intersection of medical, political and cultural sociology. She studies how institutional arrangements, cultural traditions and historical trajectories impact individual lives, often but not exclusively with a focus on health-related outcomes, behaviors and attitudes. She is the Icelandic team leader for several international surveys, including the European Social Survey (ESS), European Values Survey (EVS) and the International Social Survey Programme (ISSP). She is currently the co-editor in chief of Acta Sociologica.

UKRAINE'S PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE: UTOPIAS AND DYSTOPIAS

KEYNOTE ROUNDTABLE

Co-sponsored by CES and the Ukraine Project at the University of Iceland

Wednesday, June 28 | 6:00 pm - 7:45 pm | Háskólabíó \(The University Cinema \(HB\)\)

Russia's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022 marked the resurgence of East-West tensions after several decades of relative stability in Europe. The return of armed inter-state conflict to Europe represents a major challenge to the European security order, and it creates obstacles to the European Union's Neighbourhood and Enlargement policies. The Russian invasion has also disrupted the global economy, caused a spike in energy costs, and created a refugee crisis. This keynote roundtable takes stock of recent developments, discussing their implications for the promotion of democracy in wartime, the humanitarian dimension of the conflict, the future of east-west relations, and the prospects of EU enlargement in the shadow of Russian aggression.

Milada Anna Vachudova (Speaker) is Professor of Political Science at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Her current projects include protest in defense of liberal democracy across Europe, the revival of EU enlargement as a foreign policy tool, and Ukraine's path to EU membership amidst the transformation of European politics and institutions owing to Russia's war against Ukraine. Her recent articles explore the trajectories of European states amidst strengthening ethnopopulism and democratic backsliding – and how these changes are impacting party systems and civic participation. She holds a B.A. from Stanford University. As a British Marshall Scholar, she completed an M.Phil. and a D.Phil. at St. Antony's College at the University of Oxford. She has held fellowships and grants from the European University Institute (EUI), the Center for European Studies at Harvard University, the National Science Foundation, the US State Department and other institutions.

Jón Ólafsson (Speaker) is professor of Cultural Studies and Russian at the University of Iceland. His research interests combine cultural theory and political philosophy, and his most recent papers deal with political culture, including dissent and protest action; epistemic democracy, democratic engagement, and political agency. He now leads a research project on Democratic Constitutional Design (2019-2023). Jón has for many years had a secondary interest in Soviet history and contemporary Russian politics and has published on the engagement of Icelandic Communists in Comintern and with the CPSU. He is a frequent commentator on Russian affairs on Icelandic media.

Maryna Shevtsova (Speaker) is an EUTOPIA Postdoctoral fellow at the Faculty of Arts, the University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. She is also a Senior FWO Fellow with KU Leuven, Belgium and was previously a Swedish Institute Postdoctoral Fellow at the Gender Studies Department at the University of Lund and a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Florida, USA. Her most recent publications include the book LGBTI Politics and Value Change in Ukraine and Turkey: Exporting Europe? (Routledge 2021) and edited volumes LGBTQ+ Activism in Central and Eastern Europe. Resistance, Representation, and Identity (with Radzhana Buyantueva, Palgrave Macmillan 2019) and LGBTI Asylum Seekers and Refugees from a Legal and Political Perspective: Persecution, Asylum, and Integration (with Arzu Guler and Deniz Venturi, Springer, 2019). She is also a winner of the 2022's Emma Goldman award for her engagement in feminist research and human rights activism. She currently works on an edited volume Feminist perspectives on Russia's war in Ukraine to be published later this year with Lexington Books.

Maryna Rabinovych (Speaker) is a Post-Doctoral Researcher at the Department of Political Science and Management, University of Agder, Norway. She also cooperates with two leading Ukrainian universities, the Kyiv School of Economics and the National University of "Kyiv-Mohyla Academy". Maryna's research interests include EU external relations and their legal regulation, non-trade objectives in the EU trade policy, EU enlargement and neighbourhood policies, as well as the ongoing politico-legal developments in Ukraine, including the resilience of local communities in the war context. Maryna has published, inter alia, in the Journal of European Public Policy, Journal of Common Market Studies, East European Politics, Brill Open Law and Hague Journal on the Rule of Law. She holds a PhD (magna cum laude) in Legal Studies from the University of Hamburg, an LL.M "European and European Legal Studies" from the University of Hamburg and Europa-Kolleg Hamburg.

Urður Gunnarsdóttir (Moderator) has a background in journalism and has worked in intergovernmental organizations and diplomacy. She holds a Master's Degree in International Relations from the University of Iceland. During her work with the OSCE, she was Spokesperson during the post-conflict period in the Balkans, for the Missions in Kosovo 1999-2000 and Bosnia and Herzegovina 2001-2003. She was Spokesperson for the OSCE Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights, OSCE/ODIHR 2003-2008 and Senior political adviser to the Director of OSCE/ODIHR 2018-2020. Between 2008 and 2018 she was responsible for press communication for the Icelandic Ministry for Foreign Affairs. For a large part of her career she has focused on issues related to the human dimension of security; human rights, democracy and democratic elections; mainly in the Balkans, Eastern Europe, Caucasus and Central Asia.

CES GRANTS, FELLOWSHIPS & AWARDS

Congratulations to the Recipient of the 2023 Carolina de Miguel Moyer Young Scholar Award

Robert Braun
(UC Berkeley)

This award honors Robert Braun's outstanding contributions to scholarship on Europe; foremost of all, his theoretical and rich empirical work on xenophobia and on the role of minority religious communities in protecting Jews during the Holocaust (e.g. Protectors of Pluralism: Religious Minorities and the Protection of Jews in the Low Countries during the Holocaust. Cambridge, MA: Cambridge University Press). Braun's work has been published in top university presses and in political science and sociology's flagship journals. It stands out for the originality of the questions and hypotheses that inspire it and displays both theoretical sophistication and methodological versatility. It is also a true interdisciplinary effort, which draws on such diverse disciplines as anthropology and economics. Underlying this work is an effort to highlight the role of network properties in explaining social phenomena and their diffusion. This award is a recognition of Braun's achievements. A small token that hopefully will serve as motivation to continue advancing our knowledge of Europe's micro-history and cultural underpinnings in years to come.

Special Thanks to the 2023 Judging Committee

Laia Balcells Ventura (Chair, Georgetown University)
Juan Diez Medrano (Universidad Carlos III de Madrid)
Katrin Sieg (Georgetown University)
Mariely Lopez-Santana (George Mason University)

CES GRANTS, FELLOWSHIPS & AWARDS

Congratulations to the Recipient of the 2023 SAE-CES Pre-Dissertation Research Fellowship

Giorgia Mirto
(Columbia University)

for her dissertation

"The Political Life of Border Death in South Italy"

The SAE is the section of the American Anthropological Association that promotes the anthropological study of European societies and culture, encouraging connections between scholars working in Europe. Each fellowship includes a $5,000 stipend to fund two months' research in Europe, and travel support as well as a registration fee waiver for attending and presenting at the International Conference of Europeanists in 2024.

Special Thanks to The Society for the Anthropology of Europe (SAE) for selecting the winner.

In support of its mission to produce, support, and recognize outstanding, multidisciplinary research on Europe through a wide range of programmes and initiatives, the Council for European Studies has launched a new book series that will publish research-based work on all aspects of European Studies. The series will mirror the CES's commitment to supporting research that plays a critical role in understanding and applying the lessons of European history and integration to contemporary problems, including those in the areas of global security, sustainability, environmental stewardship, and democracy.

The books in the series will consist of both authored and edited books that contribute to our understanding of contemporary Europe, its nation states, institutions and societies. For further details, or to discuss submitting a proposal, please contact the series editor vailm@wfu.edu or publisher alison.howson@agendapub.com.

In commemoration of the founding of the Council fifty years ago, this volume brings together some of the most influential Europeanists writing today to take stock of the subject and to consider the most fruitful avenues for future research. The contributors – drawn from 52 institutions across the globe – present a wide range of perspectives on Europe's past and present, and the key challenges facing its future, such as immigration, multiculturalism, nationalism and integration.

"Accessible, insightful, and well-researched, Owning the City should be required reading for anyone interested in cities in the twenty-first century." – Tim Frye, Columbia University

"Marsha McGraw Olive brilliantly employs the nature of land governance to explain the current global liberal/authoritarian divide and to show how property rights translate into political power. A must-read for those who want to understand how politics and economics intersect in our world today." – Fatma Müge Göçek, University of Michigan

HB $99.00 978-1-78821-608-1

The received wisdom in European integration history is that, long before the EU was plagued by Euroscepticism and other forms of contestation, there was a "permissive consensus" between European elites and the general public, which allowed European integration to move forward. This book looks beyond this presumed consensus, to ask how the members of European institutions themselves perceived and shaped their relations with European citizens during the early years of the European Communities.
